Dear Sample A. Sample,

We are writing to inform you that Foard & Company, PA (“Foard” or “we”) experienced a recent data incident (the “Incident”) that involved your personal information (“Information”). As a precaution, we have also provided steps you can take to protect your Information, including the ability to enroll in credit monitoring services that we are offering free of charge for [Extra4] months.

What Happened?

On September 23, 2025, we began receiving rejection notices when attempting to file some of our clients’ tax returns. Out of an abundance of caution, we began an investigation and discovered that some fraudulent tax returns were filed using the information of a small subset of our clients. Upon this discovery, we immediately took steps to contain the situation, including changing passwords, enhancing the implementation of multifactor authentication, notifying the Internal Revenue Service (“IRS”), and engaging data security and privacy professionals to assist.

The investigation determined that there was unauthorized access and files containing your Information were obtained by an unauthorized party as part of their attempt to file fraudulent tax returns and collect improper refunds from the federal government and state tax authorities. Besides this effort to defraud the government, we are not aware of any other misuse of Information related to the Incident.

What Information Was Involved?

Our investigation has now determined that the following types of Information may have been impacted as a result of this Incident: name and Social Security number.

What We Are Doing.

Upon becoming aware of the Incident, we notified the IRS and have since worked closely with tax authorities to share information and take steps to protect our clients’ information. We have also added technical security protections on top of our existing safeguards by following the guidance of data security and privacy professionals. After determining unauthorized activity occurred on our systems, we immediately began analyzing the information involved to confirm the identities of potentially affected individuals to notify them.

For that reason, placing a fraud alert can protect you, but also may delay you when you seek to obtain credit.

Security Freeze. You may obtain a security freeze on your credit report, free of charge, to protect your privacy and confirm that credit is not granted in your name without your knowledge. You have a right to place a security freeze on your credit report, free of charge, or submit a declaration of removal pursuant to the Fair Credit Reporting Act ("FCRA").

The security freeze will prohibit a consumer reporting agency from releasing any information in your credit report without your express authorization or approval. The security freeze is designed to prevent credit, loans, and services from being approved in your name without your consent. When you place a security freeze on your credit report, you will be provided with a personal identification number, password, or similar device to use if you choose to remove the freeze on your credit report or to temporarily authorize the release of your credit report to a specific party or parties or for a specific period of time after the freeze is in place.

To place a security freeze on your credit report, you may be able to use an online process, an automated telephone line, or a written request to any of the three (3) credit reporting agencies listed above. The following information must be included when requesting a security freeze (note that if you are requesting a credit report for your spouse, this information must be provided for them as well): (1) full name, with middle initial, and any suffixes; (2) Social Security number; (3) date of birth; (4) current address and any previous addresses for the past five years; and (5) any applicable incident report or complaint with a law enforcement agency or Department of Motor Vehicles. The request must also include a copy of a government-issued identification card and a copy of a recent utility bill or bank or insurance statement. It is essential that each copy be legible, and display your name, current mailing address, and the date of issue.
