By providing this notice, Columbia Machine, Inc. (“Columbia Machine”) does not waive any rights or defenses regarding the applicability of Washington law, the applicability of the Washington data event notification statute, or personal jurisdiction.

Nature of the Data Event

On April 5, 2026, Columbia Machine became aware of suspicious activity and encryption of certain data within its technical environment. Columbia Machine promptly took measures to secure its network to mitigate risk of further activity and launched an investigation with the help of third-party forensic specialists to determine the nature and scope of the activity. The investigation ultimately determined that there was unauthorized access to the Columbia Machine network between March 27, 2026, and April 5, 2026, during which time certain files were copied and taken from the network.

Columbia Machine promptly undertook a comprehensive review of all data initially identified by forensic investigators and determined that it contained only non-confidential company documents. Additional copied files that potentially contained sensitive information were identified later, and Columbia Machine promptly initiated a second, time-intensive investigation and review process. Due to the complexity of this second investigation and the volume of data involved, the review required careful analysis and validation before reliable conclusions could be reached. On June 18, 2026, Columbia Machine completed its review and determined that personal information was impacted by this event.

The information that could have been subject to unauthorized access for Washington residents varies by individual and includes name, date of birth, social security number, driver’s license number, and passport number.

Notice to Washington Residents

On July 9, 2026, Columbia Machine provided written notice of this incident to one thousand two hundred seventy-six (1,276) Washington residents. Written notice is being provided in substantially the same form as the letter attached here as Exhibit A.

Other Steps Taken and To Be Taken

Upon discovering the event, Columbia Machine moved quickly to investigate and respond to the incident, assess the security of Columbia Machine systems, and identify potentially affected individuals. Columbia Machine is also working to implement additional safeguards and training for its employees. Columbia Machine is providing access to credit monitoring services for twenty-four (24) months through Experian, to individuals whose personal information was potentially affected by this incident, at no cost to these individuals. Additionally, Columbia Machine reported this incident to law enforcement.

Columbia Machine is also providing impacted individuals with guidance on how to better protect against identity theft and fraud, including advising individuals to report any suspected incidents of identity theft or fraud to their credit card company and/or bank. Columbia Machine is providing individuals with information on how to place a fraud alert and security freeze on one’s credit file, the contact details for the national consumer reporting agencies, information on how to obtain a free credit report, a reminder to remain vigilant for incidents of fraud and identity theft by reviewing account statements and monitoring free credit reports, and encouragement to contact the Federal Trade Commission, their state Attorney General, and law enforcement to report attempted or actual identity theft and fraud.

NOTICE OF [EXTRA1]

Dear Sample A. Sample:

Columbia Machine, Inc. (“Columbia Machine”) writes to notify you of an incident that may affect the privacy of some of your information. Although we have no evidence of any identity theft or fraud occurring as a result of this incident, this letter provides details of the incident, our response, and resources available to you to help protect your information from possible misuse, should you feel it is appropriate to do so.

What Happened? On April 5, 2025, Columbia Machine observed suspicious activity within its technical environment and promptly initiated an investigation into the incident. A forensic investigation determined that an unauthorized actor gained access to Columbia Machine’s systems between March 27, 2026, and April 5, 2026, and viewed and copied certain files stored within the company’s network. Columbia Machine promptly undertook a comprehensive review of all data initially identified by forensic investigators and determined that it contained only non-confidential company documents. Additional copied files that potentially contained sensitive information were identified later, and Columbia Machine promptly initiated a second, time-intensive investigation and review process. Due to the complexity of this second investigation and the volume of data involved, the review required careful analysis and validation before reliable conclusions could be reached. On June 18, 2026, Columbia Machine determined that information related to you was contained within the affected data and promptly undertook efforts to provide notice.

What Information Was Involved? The investigation determined the following types of information may have been impacted by this incident: your full name, [Extra2]. At this time, we have no indication that your information was subject to actual or attempted misuse as a result of this incident.

What We Are Doing. Columbia Machine takes the privacy and protection of the information in its care seriously. Upon learning of the incident, Columbia Machine immediately launched an investigation into the nature and scope of the incident. We also reviewed our security measures and information security policies to further protect against similar events in the future. We reported this event to law enforcement, and we will also report this event to regulators where required.

As an additional precaution, Columbia Machine is offering you access to twenty-four (24) months of credit monitoring and identity protection services through Experian. You can find information on how to enroll in these services in the enclosed Steps You Can Take To Help Protect Personal Information. We encourage you to consider enrolling in these services as we are not able to do so on your behalf.

What You Can Do. We encourage you to remain vigilant against incidents of identity theft and fraud by reviewing your account statements and monitoring your free credit reports for suspicious activity and to detect errors. Additional resources can be found below in the Steps You Can Take To Help Protect Personal Information, which contains information on what you can do to better protect against possible misuse of your information. You may also enroll in the complimentary credit monitoring services being offered.

For More Information. We understand that you may have additional questions about the incident that are not addressed in this letter. If you have questions, please call 833-931-3737 Monday through Friday from 9 am - 9 pm Eastern Time, excluding U.S. holidays. Please be prepared to reference engagement number [Engagement Number] when speaking with an agent. You may also contact us at PrivacyNotice@colmac.com.

Sincerely,

Columbia Machine, Inc.

Monitor Your Accounts

Under U.S. law, a consumer is entitled to one free credit report annually from each of the three major credit reporting bureaus, Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion. To order a free credit report, visit www.annualcreditreport.com or call, toll-free, 1-877-322-8228. Consumers may also directly contact the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below to request a free copy of their credit report.

Consumers have the right to place an initial or extended “fraud alert” on a credit file at no cost. An initial fraud alert is a 1-year alert that is placed on a consumer’s credit file. Upon seeing a fraud alert display on a consumer’s credit file, a business is required to take steps to verify the consumer’s identity before extending new credit. If consumers are the victim of identity theft, they are entitled to an extended fraud alert, which is a fraud alert lasting seven years. Should consumers wish to place a fraud alert, please contact any of the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below.

As an alternative to a fraud alert, consumers have the right to place a “credit freeze” on a credit report, which will prohibit a credit bureau from releasing information in the credit report without the consumer’s express authorization. The credit freeze is designed to prevent credit, loans, and services from being approved in a consumer’s name without consent. However, consumers should be aware that using a credit freeze to take control over who gets access to the personal and financial information in their credit report may delay, interfere with, or prohibit the timely approval of any subsequent request or application they make regarding a new loan, credit, mortgage, or any other account involving the extension of credit. Pursuant to federal law, consumers cannot be charged to place or lift a credit freeze on their credit report. To request a credit freeze, individuals may need to provide some or all of the following information:

1. Full name (including middle initial as well as Jr., Sr., II, III, etc.);
2. Social Security number;
3. Date of birth;
4. Addresses for the prior two to five years;
5. Proof of current address, such as a current utility bill or telephone bill;
6. A legible photocopy of a government-issued identification card (state driver’s license or ID card, etc.); and
7. A copy of either the police report, investigative report, or complaint to a law enforcement agency concerning identity theft if they are a victim of identity theft.

Should consumers wish to place a credit freeze or fraud alert, please contact the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below:

Additional Information

Consumers may further educate themselves regarding identity theft, fraud alerts, credit freezes, and the steps they can take to protect your personal information by contacting the consumer reporting bureaus, the Federal Trade Commission, or their state Attorney General. The Federal Trade Commission may be reached at: 600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, D.C. 20580; www.identitytheft.gov; 1-877-ID-THEFT (1-877-438-4338); and TTY: 1-866-653-4261. The Federal Trade Commission also encourages those who discover that their information has been misused to file a complaint with them. Consumers can obtain further information on how to file such a complaint by way of the contact information listed above.

Consumers have the right to file a police report if they ever experience identity theft or fraud. Please note that in order to file a report with law enforcement for identity theft, consumers will likely need to provide some proof that they have been a victim. Instances of known or suspected identity theft should also be reported to law enforcement and the relevant state Attorney General. This notice has not been delayed by law enforcement.

For District of Columbia residents, the District of Columbia Attorney General may be contacted at: 400 6th Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20001; 202-442-9828; and oag.dc.gov.

For New Mexico residents, consumers have rights pursuant to the Fair Credit Reporting Act, such as the right to be told if information in their credit file has been used against them, the right to know what is in their credit file, the right to ask for their credit score, and the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information. Further, pursuant to the Fair Credit Reporting Act, the consumer reporting bureaus must correct or delete inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information; consumer reporting agencies may not report outdated negative information; access to consumers' files is limited; consumers must give consent for credit reports to be provided to employers; consumers may limit "prescreened" offers of credit and insurance based on information in their credit report; and consumers may seek damages from violators. Consumers may have additional rights under the Fair Credit Reporting Act not summarized here. Identity theft victims and active-duty military personnel have specific additional rights pursuant to the Fair Credit Reporting Act. We encourage consumers to review their rights pursuant to the Fair Credit Reporting Act by visiting www.consumerfinance.gov/f/201504_cfpb_summary_your-rights-under-fcra.pdf, or by writing Consumer Response Center, Room 130-A, Federal Trade Commission, 600 Pennsylvania Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.
